About the Webinar: The first half of the program will cover recent executive orders affecting federal procurement, revisions to the Federal Acquisition Regulation (FAR), and other deregulatory initiatives. Topics include the Buy American Act, cybersecurity, tariffs, immigration, and changes to DEI policies impacting federal contracts.

The second half will focus on Design-Build contracting. When properly planned and administered, Design-Build projects can reduce costs and accelerate delivery compared to traditional Design-Bid-Build projects. However, contractors can face significant risk when agencies shift responsibility for all design issues to the Design-Builder, despite government-provided information at bid stage and end-user input during project execution. This presentation will examine how these disputes should be characterized and pursued under applicable case law. Through practical examples and hypothetical scenarios, the presenters will highlight common challenges federal construction contractors face when bidding and performing Design-Build projects.
